Oregon Planning Institute

Presenter: Byron Vanderpool

Action Recommended: None. Information Only.

The Oregon Planning Institute (OPI) is an annual conference produced by the Lane Council of Governments that is now in its fourth decade. OPI is known best as a forum for land use and related professionals to learn about and discuss challenges and opportunities facing planning in Oregon today, as well as to attend trainings and to network with their professional colleagues. Over 400 planners and other professionals attend from across the state. The conference attracts a diverse array of constituents from all levels of government; cities small and large, counties urban and rural; private as well as public sectors; and fresh-out-of-school planners to been-in-the-trenches planning directors. Registration opens in early July. For more information, visit www.oregonplanninginstitute.org.
